

However, the melodies are very catchy, and you may find yourself humming along and tapping your foot to the beat. The CD is accompanied by a compelling DVD documentary of the making of the album. Hearing the story of these people and seeing them perform the music makes the CD even more enjoyable. There is an obvious sense of community among the band members, which comes through in the music.

The DVD is very good, although at times it is difficult to understand what the members of the bands are saying when there are no subtitles. Brozman is very talented and extremely generous with the musicians. Each musician will receive royalty payments from the sales of the CD, which will go a long way in helping improve the economy of Rabaul.

Ulloa, Juanita. Paz y alegría. Oakland, Calif.: Ulloa Productions, 2005. CD. 43 minutes. $17.00.

It's always exciting when you find something you're looking for at the right time, and Paz y alegría was just what I hoped it would be! It is a delightful mix of holiday tunes in Spanish and English. It has songs associated with Christmas, and it even includes a song associated with Hanukkah, "Ocho Kandelikas," which was written in Ladino, the language spoken by Sephardic Jews.

This rich blend of holiday songs is presented with an upbeat rhythm and is easy to sing along with or just to listen to. This is truly a nice remix of many of the most popular songs of the season. It is appropriate for both young and old. If you are looking for a compilation of holiday songs in Spanish, English, and Ladino, then you will really appreciate this CD.

Adventures in Storytelling: Keys to Imagination. Indianapolis: StoryWatchers Club/Sax Media Group, 2006. DVD. 45 minutes. Color. $19.98.

Smiling multiracial kids on the cover of this title will entice prospective viewers. The DVD's photography and sound are for the most part professionally done, minus two seconds' worth of unexplained blackout and an introductory song that is awkwardly lip-synched.

Seven white American storytellers entertain a small audience of attentive elementary-aged children seated on low bleachers. The background is totally plain, thus eliminating distraction. Some of the presenters successfully use props, songs, and audience participation. Others use only their voices and body expressions. All do a serviceable job at presenting their stories.

Between presentations are skits featuring multicultural Muppetlike puppets that encourage children to use their imaginations, yet the scripts could be more imaginative. The puppeteers are not always adept at synchronizing mouth movement with vocalizations.

The special features section includes autobiographical presentations by the storytellers that will be lost on children, as these sketches are meant for an adult audience. A kid-friendly feature shows children telling stories. The sing-along music video section is inaccessible, for unknown reasons. A "behind-the-scenes" portion does not go into enough detail, nor would it interest children.

Including presenters of color who present multicultural stories would improve this DVD, as would a more consistently age-appropriate program. This selection is suggested for large collections only.
